

Should you mandate that the interests of copy protection override those of fair use you will hurt HDTV adoption, and possibly kill it. Many people feel that we cannot trust the entertainment industry to protect our fair use rights such as time shifting, and home recording. We feel that the same people opposed to the VCR are not proper people to be given so much power over the electronics industry.